back yesterday. THE CRITIC spoke in LET us have a new city postoffice and a library building, Messrs. Members of Congress, before you adjourn. Also a free bridge. WHEN men get into gambling scrapes they should be willing to bear the brant and not whine and beg to have their names kept out of the papers.

ANOTHER batch of Blaine delegates were elected yesterday. Unless some other candidate gets into the field soon, the " Plumed Knight" will carry off the prize on the first ballot.

MEMBERS of Congress will soon have an opportunity of seeing Washington at her best. It should be a strong argument in favor of liberal treatment of the District by Congress. They cannot but feel proud of their Capital City.

Ex-SENATOR McDonald's boom was given a start last night. It deserved a more pretentious beginning, although the eloquent speech of Senator Voorhees made up in vigorous expression what the meeting lacked in numbers. The boom may be said to be well under way.

WHATEVER the result of the pending detective trials no one will hardly impugn the motives or question the honesty of purpose of the men composing the Citizens Committee. They may have got hold of the wrong parties, or have been mistaken in their suspicions, but no one doubts their carnestness or desire of good to the commu-

THE stock market is a conundrum indeed. With Western Union at 671 and other stocks in proportion, it looks as if the bottom had nearly fallen out. In the grain market there is fully as bad a state of affairs. Eighty-cent wheat and 45-cent corn is something not known for years. The worst of it is that there is little prospect for higher prices.

THE real estate men of Washington are certainly energetic, wide-awake and enterprising. It is largely due to their efforts that the large influx of capital has been turned our way. It is true they have the advantage of magnificent and lovely location, good climate, natural beauty, and our position of Capital City, but they industriously and intelligently improve these advantages and bring them to the attention of men of wealth and position. It fit that they should make money. They deserve it.

THERE is a movement on foot to call auother Republican convention in this city on the plea that the rough element controlled the last one. It is at best a questionable move. Will it be any better or more satisfactory than the other? If it be true that the rougher element did control and run he last one, is it not the fault of the "better" element themselves? If they are in numbers strong enough, why did they keep away? Due notice was given of the time and place, and if they were not present, was it not their own fault?

AT the next regular meeting of the Committee on Ways and Means, on next Tuesday, an effort will be made to have the general debate on the Morrison Tariff bill rought to an abrupt termination and to conclude the discussion under the fiveminutes rule.

This will require leaves to print, which, it is understood, will be granted in all instances without any objection. Should the House proceed under the five-minute rule after next Tuesday or Wednesday it is belleved that a final vote on the bill can be gotten by the first week in May. THE present Jeannette investigation is an unfortunate affair. It is a pity that it was undertaken. It can result in no good. The fame of no one will be brightened and the name of no one can be tarnished without hurt to others. It may be that errors were committed-errors of judgment and errors of discipline. Jealousies there may have been. It is generally so under like circumstances. One officer may have treated auother harshly sometimes. The commander may have been autocratic. The men may have sometimes chafed under it. They were all brave men. The ones who survived fought bravely for their lives—the ones who died bravely met their fate. The tragic end of the expedition should have buried all jealousies and all grievances within the hearts of the survivors, and the friends of the dead should have allowed them to remain buried. No great fluits were committed. Whatever errors there were, undoubtedly were errors of judgment. Danenhower, Melville, Bartlett, Newcomb, Noros and Ninderman and all the rest are brave and gallant men Equally so were De Long, Chip, Collins, Ambler and their dead companions. They have fought their battle, and let the grave of the dead be the temb of the grievances and heart-burnings-if any there be-of the Senator Morgan's Bill About Grain Delivery. Washington, April 17, 1884. Washington, April 17, 1884.

To the Editor of The Essaing Uritic:

I understand that it is the intention of Senator Morgan, of Alabama, to introduce a bill prohibiting the purchase and sale of grain and provisions for fautor delivery.

Has the Senator considered the effect of such legislation (supposing the bill should be passed, which is slimest out of the question, upon the agricultural and mercantile interests of the country? Has be thoroughly considered the difficulty the farmers would experience in finding a market for their produce? Have the United States grown so considered the difficulty the farmers would experience in finding a market for their produce? Have the United States grown so considered the difficulty the farmers would experience in finding a market for their produce? Have the United States grown so conservative that they can adopt a policy which no other nation in the civilized world can sford uphold—so Puritanloal that transactions for future delivery, though an absolute gain to commerce, and confirmed and approved by the leading nations of Europe, are to be discountenanced occasion they offend the sensitive and hyper-religious views of a strictly moral man like Senator Morgan. We had no idea, from his past record, that Senator Morgan was so scrupitious; and, while congratulating him on his andden and unformer accession to the realm of Virtue, we would bego him to pause before he attempts to injure his party and himself by a display of Quirotte courage and self-assumed proughts him.
